

WAR CONTRACTS
BRING TREMENDOUS BOOM TO BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Two views of the huge plant the Remington Arms Company is building at Bridgeport, Conn., to make arms for the Allies. Central picture shows site as it was a year ago. The first sod was turned Dec. 16, 1914, and the work has involved the erection of a line of five story buildings half a mile long and a city large enough to house 50,000 inhabitants
